Agritourism Passport Program Encourages Farm Visits

Farm Fun

Agriculture is a vital part of our state's returned to the agritourism office are economy, and the SC Department of entered into a drawing for SC Specialty Agriculture works hard to help more Foods. people connect with our biggest industry.

"The Agritourism Passport program is one way that people can interact with local farms and have fun doing it," said Agritourism Director Jackie Moore. "Agritourism is any agriculture-based activity that brings people to farms or other agricultural settings. Some examples include U-Pick farms, corn mazes, farm-to-table dinners, and on-farm restaurants.

Much like a world traveler, an Agritourism Passport holder presents the passport at a farm destination and receives a stamp. More stamps mean more prizes as passports

"This is a win-win situation," Moore said. "The farms have an increased number of visitors, and the visitors have a great experience." She cited the increased number of strawberry farms that are participating in the program. "Agriculture and tourism create a fun-filled, memorable experience." A list of Certified SC strawberry farms is included in this issue of the Market

Pick up your 2017 Agritourism Passport at a participating farm. For a list of farm destinations, visit SCFarmFun.org, and for more about agritourism, visit scagritourism.org.

Commissioner's Cup BBQ Cook-Off

On March 25, hosted the sixth annual Commissioner's Cup BBQ Cook-Off and Festival and filled the State Farmers Market with the aroma of perfectly smoked pork.

With 41 cook teams from across the Southeast, there was something to satisfy everyone's craving for savory, saucy pork. The weather was beautiful, and the crowd of around 3,000 was enthusiastic. Once again the crowd enjoyed live music from the Going Commando Band, plus an antique tractor parade.

The South Carolina Pork Board provided the meat for the event along with IGA and Smithfield. Pit masters slow cooked nearly two tons of Boston butts this year. Other generous sponsorships from South Carolina Farm Bureau, Home Pest Control, Nephron Pharmaceuticals, VB Hook and Senn Brothers helped make this event possible.

The trophies were an unique creation made from farm implements donated by AgriSupply in Florence. Local Camden artisan Colt Shirley designed one-of-a-kind awards blending BBQ agriculture into highly sought-after masterpieces.

Southern Barbecue Network judges had the tall task of selecting winners in the categories of Boston butts and pork ribs. Each team's presentation was rated based on appearance, aroma, taste and texture.

Annie's Project Offers Sage Advice, Lasting Bonds for Female Farmers

The Clemson University Cooperative Extension Service is offering a four-day educational retreat and networking opportunity for women in agribusiness.

The retreat, called "Annie's Project," returns to South Carolina for the sixth year on May 17-20 at the Madren Conference Center and Inn in Clemson. Space is limited and registration is due by April 11. Registration is available online.

Annie's Project was founded in Illinois a decade ago, named for a woman who spent a lifetime learning to be an involved business partner with her husband, a farmer.

The four-day event includes educational presentations, networking opportunities and local farm tours. Presentation topics cover financial management, marketing, social media, risk assessment, insurance, law, estate planning and more.

Annie's Project is sponsored by Clemson Extension, the Clemson Agribusiness New and Beginning Farmer Program, ArborOne Farm Credit, AgSouth Farm Credit and the South (SCWAgN). Presenters include experts from Clemson, AgSouth, Dixon Hughes Goodman LLP and other organizations.

"Women are the fastest-growing segment in agriculture right now," said Clemson Extension agent and Annie's Project state coordinator Jennifer Boyles. "Some are looking for something new. They want to work with the earth. A lot of them are retiring from careers or they are receiving family land through estates. They are seeing that farming is very gratifying. Annie's Project offers are great opportunity for women to network and to learn tips for successful entrepreneurship.'

Women from across the state attend. They're diverse in age and background. Some are college students. Some are retired women. Some are professionals looking for new careers. To date, more than 120 South Carolina women have participated in Annie's Project.

Registration is $150, which covers all materials, meals and lodging.

For more information, contact Boyles at Carolina Women's Agricultural Network jbyls@clemson.edu or visit clemson.edu/scwagn.

Commissioner's Cup

Cook-off goers even got in on the action and voted for their favorite to be named the People's Choice winner. This year, cook teams also had to feature two of the state's official BBQ sauces.

Aspiring chefs competed in the Kids 'Que competition where children aged 6 - 12 submitted their best take on hamburgers. There were a wide variety of submissions from an all-American favorite cheeseburger to a slider topped with bacon jam. The winning creation featured delicious combination of Gouda cheese and bacon.

The winners of the 2017 Commissioner's Cup BBQ Cook-Off were as follows:

Boston Butts:

1st Place: On the Spot BBQ -Ronnie Bishop, Greenwood 2nd Place: Smoke by Day, Fire by Night – Jim Bennett, Rock

3rd Place: Blowin' Smoke -Robert Morris, Columbia

Pork Ribs:

1st Place: Killer B's BBQ – Jim Burg, Evans, GA 2nd Place: Backdraft BBQ -Eric Carpenter, Ladson 3rd Place: Bold Branch BBQ Boys – Joe Hilliard, Anderson

Kids 'Que: Grand Champion: Allie Livingston Reserve Grand Champion: Bella and Courtney Bastin

The People's Choice Award went to Steel Smok'n Smokerz and Ray LaBounty of Columbia. The Reserve Champion was Doko Smoke from Blythewood and the 2017 State BBQ Champion was Killer B's BBQ – Jim Burg, Evans, GA

The event is about more than just barbecue: we also collect canned goods to benefit Harvest Hope. This year, we were able to donate 550 pounds of food, which translates to 423 meals for
